orts of sidewalks that are still icy and lots that are still clogged up are not on deaf ears. The Physical Plant says that it is doing the best job that it can in the face of an unusually harsh ndy Jarvis, Grounds Foreman for said yesterday that his crews have f all the campus roads and most of walkways.

ERE MAY be some isolated areas of which have icy spots, but we have of them as clear as they can be," he is explained that it is almost able to completely clear the walks, when the snow freezes to them they can be cleared.

added that when the walks are d, Physical Plant crews follow behind the walks with sand to prevent ink the few accidents that we have far from the ice is a testimony to what we have done," Jarvis said.

Rieske, the assistant foreman of the campus, explained the problems in the parking lots on campus.

first said that during the vacation all parking lots on campus were cleared a fact, he said, that could be verified by the snow banks found alongside the problem now is students' parking lots," he said. "We have had cases where we'll get in and clean one area of the lots, and students will still park where the snow is."

Rieske told of one night going out to the Harris Fine Arts Center parking lot at 2 a.m. and still finding cars parked there.

"We even had some cars parked in that lot all during the holiday vacation."

Foreman Jarvis said that it is hard to clear around the cars, but that clearing the lots of cars or blocking off lots for clearing would be out of the question because students and faculty would be inconvenienced.

Explaining the Physical Plant's procedure for snow clearance, Jarvis said that first the roads and sidewalks are cleared and then the crews go to work on the parking lots.

ASSISTANT Foreman Rieske said that he and his men work from the inner-campus lots first and then out. He added that, along with pushing snow to the sides of walks and streets, he and the crews have had to haul away about 300 yards of snow so far.

"For the last two weeks, I have been called by Security every night for some reason," Rieske said. "We are doing our best."

Jarvis said that when a snowfall does occur, it usually comes at night.

"When it does snow, we call our men at 4 a.m., they come in at 5 a.m., and we try to have things cleared off by 8 a.m. when the students come on campus," he explained.

President Nixon signs foreign aid bill

CLLEMENTE, CALIF. (UPI) President Nixon signed into law today a measure authorizing $550 million in military and economic aid to Asian and Middle East nations, with the biggest going to Cambodia.

bill includes a ban on the introduction of U.S. soldiers or tanks in Cambodia—a restriction Nixon fought earlier in the year unacceptable limitation on his powers as commander-in-chief. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the administration felt this provision "gives full recognition to the right to take action to safeguard the nation's security." He termed the bill "critical to the success of the Nixon's" of cutting down American troop commitments abroad and U.S. allies to defend themselves.

measure will provide $155 million in new military and economic aid to Cambodia and another $100 million to make up for funds previously diverted in Cambodia.

restriction on troop and advisers was a victory for Sens. John Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Ida., in their month fight for a limitation to prevent Cambodia from being into another Vietnam.

amendment was originally introduced while U.S. troops were Cambodia last May and June to clean out Communist sanctuaries. The measure was held up by a two-month Senate filibuster, led by administration supporters, until all troops were out of Cambodia.

The amendment never did receive specific House approval, but Senate doves attached some of the language of the original amendment to the aid bill that passed in the closing days of the 91st Congress.

The provision does not restrict U.S. air action in Cambodia as the original amendment would have done.

Also included in the bill are $150 million in military aid to South Korea, $30 million for Jordan, $13 million for Indonesia, $5 million for Lebanon, $65 million for South Vietnam and $17 million to compensate for shortages in previous years' programs.

"The funds made available by this bill represent major support by the United States for our friends and allies who are assuming greater responsibility in the building of the peaceful and stable world we all seek in the 1970s," Nixon said in a special statement issued from the Western White House where he began a 10-day working vacation Tuesday.

Nixon spent most of the day working in his office overlooking the Pacific, conferring with aides and developing the general outlines of the State of the Union Message he will deliver to Congress Jan. 22.

Moshe Dayan charges Cease-fire violations

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan cast a new pall over the resumed Middle East peace talks Wednesday with a detailed accounting of alleged Egyptian missile violations along the Suez Canal cease-fire line.

Dayan charged that Egypt put 50 new Soviet-built anti-aircraft rocket sites in the Standstill Zone 30 miles from the canal in the first week after the truce began Aug. 7, and in the same period repaired 100 other missile bases which Israeli warplanes had destroyed before the cease-fire.

The original Israeli charges, at the time, of such violations by Egypt of the cease-fire agreement led to Israel's breakoff of the Middle East peace talks under United Nations Mediator Gunnar V. Jarring. Those talks resumed Tuesday.

Jarring began the second day of the resumed talks Wednesday with a meeting with the Israeli representative, U.N. Ambassador Yosef Tekoah.

In Amman, a policeman was killed and other persons were wounded during raids by "unknown armed element" on two police stations in the worst outbreak of violence in Jordan in more than three weeks.

A spokesman for the Arab truce team charged with keeping the peace in Jordan since the Civil War in September reported the exchange of gunfire lasted "more than two hours." He denounced the incidents, saying they were aimed at disrupting the cease-fire that ended the Civil War between the army and Palestinian guerrillas.

Dayan discussed the Egyptian missile expansion in response to questions from the Israeli parliament. He said that as a result of the illegal buildup Egypt had 150 more missile sites in the military standstill zone on Oct. 14 than it did when the cease-fire went into effect Aug. 7.

He scheduled meetings also with the negotiator for Egypt, Mohammed Hassan El-Zayyat, and Jordan, Muhammad El-Fara, and with the U.N. ambassadors of Britain, Sir Colin Crowe, and the Soviet Union, Yakov A. Malik.

In London, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Rad warred his government would not agree to any extension of the Feb. 5 cease-fire deadline unless Israel agreed by then to withdraw from occupied Arab lands.

(Editor's note: ASBYU President Brian Walton brought the following article from the SELECTIVE SERVICE NEWS to our attention with the comment, "What a good idea, something worthwhile about the draft.")

Young men who are ordered for induction through Local Board 53 in Silver Spring, Md., have one additional step to undergo before they enter the Army—and they are $1 richer for it.

Each young man receives a small envelope which has written on the face "From Russell Mizell." Inside, as has been the case every induction since 1941, is a new one dollar bill.

The gift in parting is from a local businessman, Russell Mizell, who started the practice the day he took his son to the train station in the early days of World War II and found that some of the men were pauper poor.

"I remember watching a young man and his mother talking at the station that day," Mizell recalls. "She reached into her coat purse and took out 35 cents. Imagine, 35 cents to go to war with!"

Mizell then reached into his own pocket and pulled out the first of many famous dollar bills and gave it to the inductee. Then, one by one and to each and every young man at the station, the businessman presented a similar amount, and he hasn't stopped after 15,000 such payments.

"I just don't believe that any young man should go into the service without at least a dollar in his pocket," Mizell explains.

It will soon be 30 years since Russell started with his "lucky bucks" as many have come to them. Some of the ones in the 30 years have been inexpensive ones for Mizell with very few payments to make. But one month, in World War II, there were 365 men answering their call.

Mizell remembers that once at a train station, he wanted to give a new G.I. more than his dollar.

"The train was just starting to pull away and he called out that the dollar I had just given him was important because his wife had just had a baby."

"I tried to catch up and give him some more, but the train got away from me," Mizell recalls sadly.

I met a man once who said:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. I never got acquainted with a professor. Or even a textbook. No, seriously. I never learned the thrill of digging fossils on a mountainside. Or working till dark over a test tube. Or getting on the trail of something in the library and searching it down feverishly for hours. I told myself that people who did that sort of thing were queer. And I said that professors were dull and I complained about the classes. I could learn more out of school, I said. I slid through somewhat without ever letting my mind grow curious.

And it's funny, but do you know I feel kind of regretful now whenever I talk to a scholar. Or go in a library, or wander through a museum, I missed out on all that. And I find myself wishing I could go back to college to live those days over again.

'...and live those days over again'

I met a man once who said:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. I was afraid, I guess. I wanted to try for a part in the school play once, but I didn't. I intended to. I went up to the room the night they were reading parts, but I didn't go in. There were so many there who could do it better than I, and I turned away and went down the hall. I wanted to try for the football team, too, but I told myself I was light and turned away from the practice field.

And it's funny, but do you know I can't go to see a football game now, or hear one on the radio, and I can't go to see a college play, because I see myself out on the field or on the stage as I might have been if I hadn't been afraid. And I find myself wishing I could go back to college to live those days over again.

I met a man once who said:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. Working my way through school took all my time, or I told myself it did. The fellows used to go bummeling around at night and sometimes they'd ask me along, but I never did. I always told them I had to study. It seemed to me a lot of foolishness, the way they used to hang around the college drug store, or loiter on the library steps, or go to the snake dances or rallies. I even missed the football games. Froth, I called it. Wasted time! I was in school to study.

And it's funny, but do you know I turn away now every time I see a group of college men gathered in a drug store or on a corner of the campus. And every time I see two old college clowns slap each other on the back and say, "Remember the time we . . ." Igulp a little because I missed out on all that, and I find myself wishing I could go back to college to live those days over again.

I met a man once who said:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. When I went there I wanted to meet the one girl and I wanted to dream dreams with her and make eternal pledges. But I read a lot of things about the "romantic fallacy." And about the "facts" of love and marriage. And some of the other fellows said, "Love is only sex." They said, "You've got to be hard about these things." And they gritted their teeth on the word "hard" and went in for sex. I let myself believe them and believe hard. I threw away the dreams and pledges, and then one day I met a girl who could have been the dream girl, but I didn't believe in dream girls. "I'm hard," I said. And gritted my teeth. "Love is only sex," I said and went in for sex. I didn't enter into love all the way, and aim at perfection. I married another girl, and have a family now. But I missed out on all the dreams and pledges.

And it's funny, but do you know that every time the wind blows across a campus in the springtime I wince a little inside. I didn't let myself believe in perfection. I was satisfied with something less. And now, when I see a boy and girl look at each other a certain way, I let myself wishing I could go back to college . . . to live those days over again.

I met a man once who said:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. When I went there as a Freshman, they had us climb to the top of the "Y" on the mountain. I participated that night in lighting it. But, I considered the school to be a university just like any other university. I became somewhat irritated over having to take religion courses in order to graduate. I must be honest and say that I even cheated in some of the examinations in those courses. It was only later that I discovered that I never understood the meaning of the great principles that were being discussed. I never really internalized them. It was only after I was out of college that scales fell from my eyes and I discovered that those principles, if understood, accepted, and lived, would bring me the greatest joy that I could ever know. It was only then, when I was in the later years of my life, that I made the Personal Commitment to try to live those principles and to represent HIM in the finest way I could. I dropped into the university on another day and attended the devotional in which a great man talked about those principles and I found myself wishing that I could go back to college and live those days over again.

This article was written by Thomas Wheelwright and Dr. Reed Bradford.

Wheelwright was a student at BYU in the late 1940's, and Bradford is with the Sociology Dept.

The article may be familiar to many BYU students, but even so, the message it carries is ever fresh, and reminds us to strive for the "whole" man, developing the physical, the emotional, the mental and the spiritual aspects of individual life.

letters to the editor

KUDOS

Editor:
While attending the basketball game at the Hawaii International Center last week, I am compelled to write a letter of commendation to the students of BYU who came to our city. Honolulu.

First of all, let me say that the basketball team was the finest of the tournament and got homed in the last game against the University of Hawaii so much that it made me smile a smile of pride. In the University, our team was the best. At the end of the game, I was cheering strongly for BYU.

Let me say also, that the Cougars performed beautifully of course.

Finally, let me add that your men Cosmo simply won over the crowd no matter how partisan were. After the final game when awards were handed out, nearly 80 fans were cheering "Cosmo, Cosmo for M.V.P." I watched him with a high amount of tension with humorous antics. I also watched keep his cool when one of the Hawaii players elbowed one of our players generally just pasted him back and wished the whole starting good luck. I think Cosmo, along with the Cougars, did more for relations between Hawaii and BYU than ever be comprehended. We thank them.

RING FOR HELP

Editor:
By mistake, a wedding ring placed in the pocket of the awards of pants last Monday night in men's locker room. By the time mistake was discovered the owner of the erroneous pants had left the room and probably unbeknown to him carried the ring away.

The owner of the ring has married only two weeks, so we can imagine his anxiety in the matter. Realize that the ring may not have found its way to him if it has been found that the finder might now know what to do with it.

So if you were in the men's room last Monday evening, please check your pants pockets, and if you find the ring please call 374-2421, Dr. Reed Bradford, Sophs, Salt Lake City.

Liston found dead, cause still unknown

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Narrator and actress in Sonny Liston's plush home Wednesday but the initial autopsy on the body of the 38-year-old former heavyweight champion gave no clues to the cause of death.

The coroner's office said it conducted toxicological and microscopic tests to determine what was in Liston's blood at the time of death. The additional test will take "a couple of days," the coroner's office added.

Liston, self-styled "bad guy of the ring" who was found dead Tuesday night, was injured in a traffic accident Thanksgiving Day and recently complained of chest pains.

The ex-champion's wife, Gladys, said she returned to the couple's country club residence from a 10-day trip.

Liston's body was on its back partly on a bench at the foot of the bed. A rail in the bench was broken, indicating he fell suddenly.

Vote begins

With individual preferring a more web-like coverage, we'll award the voting curios at locations around campus today and Friday, Jan. 7 and 8, to choose 20 semi-finalists in the annual BYU Most Perfect Man competition.

Voting, which requires an activity card, will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the McKay Building, ELWC, JKB and Morris and Cannon Centennial buildings. Finalists will be notified Saturday morning according to the Women's Office.

Traffic deaths down in '70

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Wednesday a sharp decline in the nation's traffic death toll last year—indicating recently passed safety laws are saving lives on the highway—and it proposed to try to cut the number of deaths some more.

A preliminary survey by the National Highway Safety Bureau shows that 55,300 persons died in traffic accidents in 1970, a decline of 1,100 since 1969.

Experts were cautious about predicting the decline will continue. But they said it appears it is the result of laws since 1966 requiring vehicles be equipped with seat belts, collapsible steering wheels and increased passenger compartment padding.

They also cited the heavy use of the Interstate highway system, "twice as safe" as other highways, and increased use of roadside safety innovations such as breakaway signposts.

The Transportation Department, meanwhile, proposed to cut death from rollover accidents, now totaling 1,400 a year, by requiring automobile makers to construct stronger car roofs.

Under the standard, the forward part of auto roofs, that section most likely to collapse in rollover accidents, would be bolstered to protect occupants of the front seat.

No protests planned for game

BYU's weekend road trip to the University of New Mexico and University of Texas at El Paso is reportedly clear of protests.

Deep freeze weather "seems to have put a damper" on the possibility of demonstrations kindling at UNM, according to Sarah Laidlaw, editor of the student newspaper, the "Daily Lobo."

"The Black student union hasn't really been active this year," she added.

She reported that there had been rumors "that something was going to happen at the New Mexico-BYU football game this Fall, but nothing happened. Two cheerleaders didn't attend the game but we don't know whether it was a protest or not."

Miss Laidlaw added, however, that there "undoubtedly will be more police at Friday's game. Much the same picture reported from UTEP."

"The interests of the are on other things," Wong, managing editor of "Prospector," claiming protest plans have been off yet.

There were several incidents at FIU-Paso and a handful of arrests, according to Miss Wong.

Cougar swimmers finish strong in West Coast Relay competition

BYU swimmers were pitted in tough competition over holidays as they traveled to San Francisco, to meet the UCLA Trojans, Long Beach and Texas Tech., in the West Relays.

Swimming at the Trojans pool Dec. 18 the BYU swimmers stunned as a strong USC swept every event except the yard free style and the one and one meter diving. Tom Banks, BYU's top swimmer in his best event of the season, in the 50 yard free, with a clocking of 22.2 seconds. Curnow took honors in the competition as he shook the challenges of the Southern California divers to capture both one and three meter diving titles. Other Cougar hopefuls at Southern California were meet MVP Favero and Knowles Laverty, freshman.

Friday Dec. 19 BYU again up with tough competition as it clinched with nationally ranked UCLA, Long Beach and Texas Tech. Swimming came strong on strong in 100 yard medley turning in a of 3:37.2, bettering the year time by nearly six seconds. Slobodan Djakovic made strong in the 1,000 free style with a time of 7.2 just seven tenths of a second off his lifetime record. The early season showing displayed by Banks has raised the Cougar hopes for a conference victory this year.

Curnow, was again the "Audience pleaser of the day" in the Long Beach meet as he defeated John De Riddle from Long Beach in the one and three meter diving to remain undefeated in his last four outings this year. Jim Whylaway, last year's diving ace for the Cougars, finished third.

The BYU team in Pool 1 in Long Beach was the scene of the annual West Coast Relays held the following Sat. Dec. 20. Participating schools were USCB, Tech, Cal State Long Beach, USC, San Diego State and BYU.

USC finished first, with Long Beach second and the Cougars, spurred on by a tremendous team effort, finished third.

BYU once again had to go up against two nationally ranked teams in Long Beach and Southern Cal, but the Cougars finished strong in the 200 yard free style, and the 200 yard butterfly.

Once again the smooth and easy style of Curnow gave him first place honors in the one and three meter diving competition against 18 competitors trying for the coveted first place trophy.

Curnow, by virtue of his victories, swept all the diving competition.

Coach Rollie Lester spoke of Curnow by saying, "he has the potential and desire needed in winning, and he should also do well in the National competition."

The BYU squad will return to the conference races next Thursday against the University of Utah.

Chris ends football career

BYU's Chris Parasopoulos will carry the blue and white colors of Cougarsill for the last time this coming Saturday afternoon when the NCAA kick return record holder concludes his brilliant college football career.

Parasopoulos broke Kentucky's Dicky Lyons old record for punt and kickoff returns by more than 200 yards in rolling up an impressive 2,454 yards in 24 career games for BYU.

Chris was selected along with numerous other outstanding college football players to play in the All Star Bowl at Mobile, Ala. He was further honored this year by being given All-American honorable mention by both Associated Press and United Press International.

Athletes prepare for conference battles

By R.C. ROBERT
University Sports Writer

The past is dead, and the future is according as the Cougars into the conference tournament in 1971. Western Athletic Conference basketball contention, meeting two of WAC's most formidable opponents, New Mexico and P.

As far as the Cougars have done an 8-4 mark, but now the conference battles are about to focus the past record as nothing except the final pride of the individual.

The fact remains that in order to gain recognition as far as post on tournament berths are concerned, the WAC representatives have to record a first or second place finish before being "looked" by the various tournament selectors who select the teams for competition.

The WAC champion automatically gains a berth in the national Collegiate Athlete Association's regional playoffs, the National Invitational Tournament held at New York's Madison Square Garden usually as the second place finisher in WAC. Thus all conference teams are extremely important to WAC teams, and the possible sight of a post-season bid rides the emergence on the scene this week's WAC openers. (U's first opponent New Mexico has compiled an impressive 9-2 mark thus far.

Led by the tenacious rebounding of Willie Long and the outside shooting of John Johnson, the Lobos along with the Cougars, will be eager to start the crucial WAC bid-opener off with a victory.

After the New Mexico contest BYU will travel to El Paso Texas for a showdown with the UTEP Miners. Earlier this year the Miners almost pulled off an upset against third ranked Southern California, before bowing in the closing minutes of play to the Trojans.

The Miners are currently third in the nation in team defense allowing their opponents a measly 59 points per game, with their stingy defensive prowess.

Final grid poll

The BYU Games Center is sponsoring a busy week of activities. The first is a four-day Men and Women's Varsity Table Tennis team, a challenge round for the Men's Varsity Bowling team, a qualifying round for the Women's Varsity Bowling team, and a shuffleboard tournament.

At present the Games Center sponsors a Men and Women's Varsity Table Tennis team for competition with other universities in the A.C.U.I. (Association of College Universities International). Tryouts for the respective teams will be held on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 7 and 8 in the games area beginning at 4 p.m.

The Men and Women's Bowling teams are already formed and have competed in two meets. The women's team finished first in their last meet at Weber State by beating a strong Boise State team 45-44.

The men's team on the other hand could only manage a second place finish at Utah State and a third place finish at Boise State.

A challenge round for sixth place on the men's team will be held Thursday, Friday, and Monday, Jan. 7, 8, and 11 beginning at 4:30 p.m. The men must have earned an average of 174 or higher after bowling 18 games in order to qualify. The women at present only have five on their team, and a special qualifying round will be held during the same time as the men's challenge round, and the girl with the highest average will qualify for selection to the team.

The shuffleboard tournament will be open to all students, and a sign-up list is now available at the Games Center desk for the tournament which will be conducted Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 13 and 14.

Games Center Director Shaffer Bown stated: "All these activities are open to students desiring to participate in them, and for those students desiring a position on the Men and Women's Bowling team, this is your opportunity to do so."

Stars to entertain Chaparrals tonight

The Utah Stars, currently leading the American Basketball Association's Western Division with a 26-12 record, play host to the Texas Chaparrals today at 7:30 p.m.

In their last encounter the Stars, threatened with a $500 fine per man by head coach Bill Sharman, completely blitzed the Chaparrals off the court enroute to a convincing 134-109 win.

The Stars have a perfect record against the Texas team, and have won all four of their previous encounters easily. But the Chaparrals have been coming on strong in the latter stages of the season, and have one of the better balanced scoring attacks in the ABA this season.

"Your Safety Is Our Business"

iety for Asian Studies

Material sought for journal society for Asian Studies is to collect material for its journal "Asia," according to Ames, vice-president of student activities. The journal will contain on any subject pertaining from research papers to articles, Ames said.

added that any student, of major, can submit for publication in "Asia."

utions may be left in the Studies Department, 121,

Faculty Office Building. According to Ames, contributions can be any length up to ten pages. The deadline for submitting work is February 1, 1971. Ames suggested that students retain copies of their contributions.

"The journal will be of a professional quality this year and will play an increasingly larger role on the BYU campus as the Church becomes more involved in Asia," Ames said.

Ames said the BYU Asian Studies Program is the foremost program of its kind in the West.

History exemption test

The History 170 Exemption Test will be given January 12 at 3 p.m. in 261 MCKB as well as on January 14, same time and same location.

Students can sign up for the test with the History Department secretary in 230 Maeser Building. Also, a fee of $2 must be paid at the Cashier's Office in the Administration Building and a receipt indicating such payment must be presented when the student goes to take the test.
